It would be an understatement to say the town of Sidney was excited when the Yellow Jackets ended their playoff hiatus in 2017.

The entire town celebrated with a downtown Thursday night rally that year as Sidney football was on the eve of playing in the postseason for the first time since 1989. The team bus parked two blocks from the courthouse and the marquee was lighted as the team passed the theatre. The high school band blasted the fight song as the team approached the community rally location.

Seeing the team’s name in lights was another example of how high school sports bring the community together!
